FROM BALTIMORE.

Homeless Case. BALTIMORE, June 18.—This morning, at Centre Market, a colored man named James Lewis, aged 23, was passing the stall of one Rose, a butcher, when he was accosted by a son of the latter, named Charles Rose, who wished Lewis to assist him in removing some meat from the stall to a wagon.

Lewis, who was in the employ of another butcher, refused, as he had work to perform for his employer, when young Rose seized and threw a butcher knife at Lewis, which took effect near the left hip, causing a wound from which he died during the forenoon. Rose made his escape, and has not yet been apprehended.

This morning Mollie Ray was instantly killed by jumping from the second tier of the Baltimore city jail, where she had been confined for being drunk and disorderly.

A CHILD'S TONIC, grateful to the taste, a powerful invigorator and appetizer, and a gentle and safe vermifuge is required, and should always be kept on hand in every family. Dr. JAYNE'S Tonic Vermifuge answers all these requisites, and a few doses occasionally will do much towards maintaining a child's health. Sold everywhere.

THE KEESTONE CHAIR STORE, situated at No. 159 N. Eighth street, has now on hand, ready for disposal to any who may desire to possess some of the valuable articles hereafter enumerated, a large and complete stock of Manila, Havana, Key West, and Domestic Cigars. Besides these the store is furnished with a full line of everything pertaining to the trade, including the best of Smoking and Chewing Tobacco. The Manila Cigars sold at this establishment are said to be unsurpassed, but probably the best way to test this question is for any one who is in doubt upon the subject to proceed immediately to the spot, purchase and try one for himself, and give his own opinion unbiassed by the judgment of others.

MEDICAL. THE THEORY OF THE Age in Regard to Rheumatism.

The method of treating rheumatism unfortunately never contemplates the absolute cure of the disease, and only aims to afford temporary relief to the afflicted. Its object, like that of all physicking and doctoring, is to assist nature; for, after all, the real avocation of a physician is simply that of a nurse who aids nature to throw off disease. In the case, however, of rheumatism, neither the aid of the physician nor the struggles of outraged nature are equal to the emergency. This chronic affection has, indeed, long been a baffle to medical skill. Temporary relief is all the medical men profess to be able to give, and rheumatism has indeed been, in a pecuniary point of view, a complete godsend to the poorer members of the medical profession. To such young and poor physicians, rheumatism is a great boon, but to the general public it is a great curse. The discoveries, however, of the past thirty years, and the unprecedented strides which medical science has made during the past quarter of a century, have been instrumental in reducing this obstinate and rebellious disease completely under the power of a scientific practitioner.

The only remedy which has thus far been found successful is to be obtained in this city. It has not been in existence long enough to drive chronic rheumatism out of the world, but that its effect will in time be nothing less has now been abundantly proved. Some thirty-seven years ago, there graduated at the University of Pennsylvania a gentleman who has since become widely known to the scientific world. We refer to J. P. Fitch, M. D. Dr. Fitch was also a student of the celebrated Dr. Chapman, who founded in 1817 the Philadelphia Medical Institute, and to whom, on account of his great merit as a Professor of the Institutes of Medicine, students took the same delight in pointing as the Scotch theological scholars did to the celebrated Dr. Chalmers, saying at the same time, with honest pride, "I studied under him." At college young Fitch was a marked man on account not only of his generally studious behavior, but on account of the very unusual attention which he bestowed on the vexed subject of chronic rheumatism. On one occasion when Dr. Chapman remonstrated with him pleasantly concerning the great attention he was giving his darling branch of study, he replied, "I intend that rheumatism shall no longer be a chronic disease, for I shall bring it under the control, if not of the old, at least of my own pharmacopoeia." At that time, this ambitious speech coming from so young a man was regarded generally, among the physicians who heard it, as a sport of pride. The genuine stuff, however, was in the man who uttered it, and in a very few years after we find the same Dr. Chapman encouraging Dr. Fitch to proceed with his "Rheumatic Incubations," as he believed he had discovered "something not only entirely new, but something which must prove eminently beneficial to the cause of suffering humanity." A compliment from so distinguished a quarter had the effect of setting Dr. Fitch to work with redoubled energy. After long study and years of experimenting in public and private laboratories, both in Europe and America, the Doctor produced his Vegetable Rheumatic Remedy. This specific is taken inwardly, because Dr. Fitch has become convinced that the only means by which the seat of rheumatic disease can be effectually reached is through the stomach. The remedy has now become universal, and is ordered by the different faculties the same as they order Gregory's mixture, Nichol's Peruvian bark, etc. etc.

When the Doctor made the discovery of his vegetable remedy, he communicated the fact, but not the secret, to the medical faculty. The faculty informed him that, as a regular physician, he must communicate his secret to his brother physicians "for the good of science." The Doctor, however, concluded, and we think with eminent propriety, that if Dr. Gregory (whose high social position in Europe corresponded pretty much with that of Dr. Fitch in America) had not impaired his position by retaining the secret of his celebrated mixture, there was no reason why the same law would not apply in this country. Acting on this principle, the Doctor proceeded and took his own course. The result was that he brought the faculty up to his own standard, and to-day the medicine of the Doctor is an acknowledged prescription for rheumatism among regular physicians. In spite of the fact that this city is full of colleges and scientific men, we cannot close this article without expressing our municipal pride that we have men like Dr. Fitch, men who are not afraid to brave public opinion, and not afraid of being styled innovators by the unthinking, provided they can, by their "innovating," confer lasting benefits upon mankind.

Medical advice to Rheumatic sufferers given daily, from 11 until 4, without charge. No other diseases prescribed for. Advice sent by mail without charge. Depot and office, No. 29 South FOURTH Street. Sold by druggists generally.

MEDICAL. NATURE'S GIFTS, SCIENTIFICALLY DEVELOPED.

As mankind, from indiscretion or other causes, has been doomed to suffer from disease, so also has remedy been provided. Our bills and valleys abound with roots and herbs, which if scientifically prepared and compounded, will restore health and vigor to the invalid. To find such a remedy we should seek one that has stood the test of HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS. It is entirely vegetable and contains no liquor. It is a compound of Fluid Extracts, The Roots, Herbs, and Barks from which these extracts are made, are gathered in Germany; all the medicinal virtues are extracted from them by a scientific process, and the extracts are then forwarded to this country to be used expressly for the manufacture of this Bitters. There is no alcoholic substance of any kind used in the composition of this Bitters; hence it is free from all the objections incident to the use of a liquor preparation.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC. Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters with the purest quality of German Rhenish Orange, etc. It is used for the same diseases as the Bitters, in cases where some pure alcoholic stimulus is required.

WOODWARD, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, writes: PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1867. I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good Tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours, truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD.

I have used "Hoofland's German Bitters and Tonic" in my family during the past year, and can recommend them as an excellent tonic, imparting tone and vigor to the system. Their use has been productive of decidedly beneficial effects. WM. F. ROGERS.

HON. JAMES M. WOOD, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pennsylvania. I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with dyspepsia.
